Translators without Borders, a US 501(c) 3 non-profit with an operations center in Kenya, was founded in 1993 to provide volunteer translations to non-profit organizations. In 2010, the organization started a virtual platform to better coordinate these resources. In the last five years, we have translated over 40 million words of life-saving and life-changing content in over 190 language pairs. Our latest activations around the Ebola crisis and Nepal earthquake have won widespread praise from the international community.

Background

TWB started to respond to the European Refugee Crisis in October 2015 and has run two consecutive projects as a member of the Start network since that time. To date we have provided translation to partners working in the response, trained partner staff, professional and aspiring translators and interpreters, set up the translators and interpreters working group, and started a humanitarian interpreter roster.

Background of Research:

This research is part of a larger collaboration with Save the Children that aims to understand how language barriers are affecting the lives of children refugees and migrants within camps in Greece.

The Role

Provide support, guidance, and recommendations for research related to language issues experienced by children refugees and migrants in Greece. The CwC consultant will report to the Project Director for the TWB ERR and work closely with the TWB Senior Project Officer for Research as well as the TWB Monitoring, Evaluation and Learning Manager.

Responsibilities

- Advise the PO Research on how to adapt/ameliorate the research methodology for children and youth
- Review the research questions, in order to make sure they are appropriate for children
- Develop a game that will allow the researchers to better understand the language barriers children refugee and migrants are facing, and how these barriers impact their lives. This game will allow them to trace their journey since they left home, their mother tongue, the places they have been before they reached Greece, how long they stayed in each place, the languages people spoke in each of these places, how they communicated with children of their age that spoke other languages, and what languages they learned during their journey
- Develop recommendations, templates, and examples of child-friendly materials to be delivered with the final reports
- Review and provide feedback on the final reports

Deliverables

- Provide 5-12 days of remote consultations spread out over a few weeks
- Design 1 game to facilitate qualitative data collection
- Develop a short document that includes brief recommendations, examples, and/or templates for creating child-friendly materials that can be easily translated into a variety of underserved languages
- Review final report to ensure consistency in child-friendly methodology and recommendations

Qualifications

The right consultant is an energetic team player who can work virtually with team members based throughout the world. He or she can easily multi task, take initiative and suggest ideas out of the box.

- Strong background in developing tools and resources for communicating with children in refugee environments
- Experience implementing field-based research projects using mixed-methodology and working directly with children
- Experience providing remote consultancy services
- Strong writing skills in English

Preferred Qualifications

- Advanced degree in relevant discipline
- Experience working with Save the Children or other child-focused humanitarian relief organizations
- Specific knowledge of the refugee crises in Greece
- Experience working with populations that speak Kurdish (Kurmanji and Sorani), Dari, or Farsi desirable.
